Nothing to Indicate He Has Had "Snap" During the Past Four Years.

marks his being up to date. It may be a change only for the sake of change, but it is responsive to a public demand, and, therefore, jets propose it.

"It is contrary to my own love for the dear old Constitution to suggest any alteration in its terms, lest it be respected as a reffection upon, or a criticism of, that which has been put to the sacred use for 15 years of maintaining liberty regulated by law, and the suarrantees of the rights of the minority and the individual under the rule of the majority. But yielding to the modern healt, and just to show that though I am a conservative, I am not a reactionary, I venture the suggestion that it would aid the efficiency of the executive and center his energy and attention and that of his subordinates in the latter part of his Administration upon what is a purely disinterested public service if he were made ineligible after sorving one term of its years, either to a succeeding or a nonconsecutive term. "I am a little specific in this matter because it seems necessary to be so in order to be understood. I don't care how determined he is that he himself will not secure his renomination (and there are very few, indeed, who go to that extent), still his subordinates equally interested with him in his re-election will, whenever they have the opportunity, exert their industion and re-election.

"Four years is rather a short time in which to work out great governmental "Four years is rather a short time is which to work out great governmenta policies. Six yeas is better, Osler's Theory for Presidents.

The Presidency is a great office to bold. It is a great honor, and it is sur-rounded with much that makes it full of pleasure and enjoyment for the occu-pant in spite of its heavy responsibility and the shining mark that it presents for misrepresentation and false attack. 'I consider that the President of the for misrepresentation and tause attack.

"I consider that the President of the United States is well paid. The salary by no means measures the contribution to his means of living, which the generosity of Congress has afforded, and unless it is the policy of Congress to enable him in his four years to save money enough to live in adequate dignity and comfort thereafter, then the salary is all that it ought to be.

"What are we to do with our former Presidents? I am not sure Dr. Osler's method of dealing with eiderly men would not properly usefully apply to the treatment of former Presidents. The groper and scientific administration of a dose of chloroform or of the fruit of the lotus tree might make a fitting end to the life of one who held the highest office in the land, and at the same time would secure the country from the trubulesome fear that the occupant could ever come back. It would relieve the country from the burden of thinking how he is to support himself and his family, would fix his place in history, and enable the public to pass the to new men and new measures. I commend this method for consideration.

Should Respect Bryan Suggestion.

"I observe that our friend, Mr. Bryan proposes another method of disposing former President. Mr. Bryan not had exactly the experience of being a President. He has been a 'near President' three times, and possibly that qualifies him as an expert to speak of what we ought to do with our former Presidents.

of what we ought to do with our former Presidents.

"He has been very vigorous in this campaign in helping to make me a former President, and if I have followed with accuracy his public declarations and his private opinions, he is anxious to perform the office of making my successor a former President after one term. As a Warwick and as a maker of former Presidents, I think we should give great and respectful consideration to his suggestion. Instead of ending the Presidential life by chloroform or lotus eating, he proposes that it should expire under the anesthetic effect of the debates of the Senate.

"He proposes that former Presidents debates of the Senate.

"He proposes that former Presidents should be confined to the business of sitting in the Senate and listening to the discussions in that body. Why Mr. Bryan should think it necessary to add to the discussion in the Senate the liguidarians of former Presidents I am at a loss to say. If I must go and disappear into oblivion, I prefer to go by the chloroform or lotus method. It's pleasanter and it's less drawn out."

Boy Corn Growers

Coming to Capital

Two hundred prize-winning corn by President Taft December 5 at the White House. The prize winners, all of whom are boys, will be accompanied by A. P. Sandles, secretary of the department of agriculture in Ohlo, and possibly by Governor and Mrs. Judson Harmon.

Harmon.

Several thousand boys entered the contest. Public spirited citizens provided funds for the trip to Washington, the reward for the excellent work of the young farmers. Last spring President Taft's attention was called to the contest, and he wrote a letter commending the work.

After being received by the President the boys will see the sights of Washington, visiting Congress, the Supreme Court, the Department of Agriculture and other places.
